

Stephané Waisanen joined the Division of Criminal Justice's Office of Research and Statistics as an analyst in 2018 where she supports the Colorado Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice and its various subcommittees. She also is involved in the data collection for reports on crime statistics, correctional population, and disproportion minority contact. Previously she worked for the Department of State designing and implementing network infrastructures worldwide. Stephané received her BA in International Relations from American University, and a MA in Telecommunications from George Mason University.