I. INTRODUCTION

A. Purpose of this Guide

Dear School Safety Partners:

As you know, school personnel are uniquely situated to prevent, mitigate, and report child sexual abuse. Nationally, up to 1 in 4 girls and 1 in 6 boys is a victim of child sexual abuse¹. Of the children victimized in 2011, schools officials were significantly more likely than police to know about interpersonal violence occurring against students.² As the Adverse Childhood Experiences Study (ACES) noted, childhood trauma can have negative lasting long-term effects on life expectancy, economic outlook, and life satisfaction³.

In 2018, the Colorado Child Abuse and Neglect Hotline System received 221,969 calls from concerned Coloradans. Those calls led to 112,983 reports or what is more accurately known as “referrals” of child abuse or neglect raising allegations of suspected child abuse and/or neglect. Of the 59,825 allegations of suspected child abuse or neglect, 4,227, or 7% or all allegations, concerned sexual abuse, and 1,111 of these allegations were substantiated. Ibid.

The Colorado School Safety Center supports child sexual abuse education and prevention efforts throughout Colorado. The Child Sexual Abuse Prevention Specialist at the Center is dedicated to providing resources and training to schools, parents, and students at no cost. As a part of its Safe School Plan, each school district is encouraged to adopt a child sexual abuse and assault prevention plan, including comprehensive, age-appropriate curricula for K through 12th Grade. Education on body safety is a critical piece of reducing victimization in our communities.

As a school professional, it can feel overwhelming to integrate abuse prevention into an already packed school day. The good news is that child molestations can be prevented⁴. More good news is that juveniles who offend, which is the case in a sizable number of child abuse cases, recidivate at very low levels when proper interventions are put in place.⁵ In addition, child sexual abuse prevention is highly correlated with common-practice initiatives such as a positive school culture and positive parent engagement⁶. Child sexual abuse prevention education can easily be integrated into the Colorado Department of Education Comprehensive Health Standards (outlined below in Section VII(B) or other classroom content as the school/district sees fit. Child sexual abuse prevention must assist educators in identifying signs of abuse and predatory behavior and promote disclosure with appropriate response and reporting; and assist students in setting boundaries, learning about safe/unsafe touch, grooming behaviors of predators, safe modes of disclosure, and other related topics.

B. Overview of Child Sexual Abuse

(This section is instructional only, and should not be considered a comprehensive guide.)

Child sexual abuse refers to any sexual contact with a child or enticement of a child to have sexual contact with an adult or juvenile in a position of power. It can occur physically, but includes any behavior perpetrated on a child for the offender’s sexual gratification. It therefore includes voyeurism, pornography, enticement, or any type of exploitation. Child sexual abuse is particularly insidious because it occurs covertly. In order to successfully commit their crimes, offenders must not be detected, and children must not report. Accordingly, we must sometimes look to the behaviors of the offenders and to the manifestation of abuse in children to determine whether abuse or risk of abuse is occurring.

1. Signs and Symptoms

Symptoms of sexual abuse can manifest themselves physically, behaviorally, and academically, but there is no physical evidence of abuse in 90% of cases. If a child exhibits physical injuries to the genitalia, wetting and soiling accidents unrelated to toilet training, pregnancy, a sexually transmitted disease, or frequent and unexplained pain related to elimination, there is cause to refer the child to child protection for further investigation. Behavioral signs include sexual knowledge beyond a child's developmental stage, excessive or public masturbation, sudden mood swings including rage, fear, anger or withdrawal, self-harming behaviors, unexplained avoidance behaviors, and regression. Sudden academic decline can also be a sign of emotional distress. Because these symptoms could be the result of other factors, they must be assessed in context, and further investigation may be warranted.

2. Mandated Reporting

Section 19-3-304, C.R.S., governs mandatory reporting in Colorado. All public and private school officials and employees are among those required by law to report suspicions of abuse. See that section and your school district policies with any questions you have regarding your obligations under the law. The Department of Human Services has further guidance on the issue at this link: <http://www.coloradocwts.com/are-you-a-mandated-reporter>.

Working in a school setting, you have close and consistent contact with children and are able to see trends and warning signs earlier than other concerned community members. As a mandated reporter, your job is to report any suspicions of abuse. Child protection services has the role of investigating alleged abuse.

Colorado has a centralized hotline for all mandated reports: 1-844-CO-4-KIDS. Remember: a report is not an accusation of child sexual abuse but rather the sharing of information that may appear to be signs and symptoms of child sexual abuse.

If you have a suspicion to report, you must be the one to make the call. While this can be intimidating, it sometimes helps to debrief with a school administrator, nurse, or counselor about the process. However, please note that talking to a supervisor DOES NOT absolve you from your independent responsibility to make a call to 1-800-CO-4-KIDS. Some common obstacles to reporting include:

- Fear of making an inaccurate report or being wrong
- Fear of negative reactions
- Concern that child protective services or law enforcement will not provide sufficient intervention
- Fondness for the parents and a belief that they would not hurt their own child
- Fear of misinterpreting cultural disciplinary styles
- Concern about becoming entangled in legal proceedings.

While these feelings can be typical, most revolve around the stress of reporters deciding if the evidence warrants a call. The good news is that you, as a mandated reporter, simply need to report anything you notice and do not have to determine if something is abuse or not. You are legally protected from liability when you report in good faith. You are legally culpable if you do not report when you suspect abuse.

The Colorado Department of Human Services released a standardized mandated reporter online training in 2015. In the course, participants learn about the history and rationale of mandated reporting, signs and symptoms of abuse, the process of making a mandated report, and the availability of resources statewide. The course is customizable to the experience level or interest of participants in the information. Completion certificates are printable at the site. The course is available at: <https://www.coloradocwts.com/mandated->

reporter-training. Another course has been added to train on Recognizing and Identifying Human Trafficking. It is available here: <https://learning.coloradocwts.com/course/search.php?search=recognizing+and+responding>

The School Safety Resource Center produced an online training for school staff on reporting in 2017. That course emphasizes the indicators of sexual abuse. It offers an overview of the prevalence of abuse and the barriers in reporting it, the types and indicators of abuse, characteristics of abusers, and proper response and reporting procedures. Printable certificates are available upon completion. The course is available here: <https://www.train.org/colorado/course/1071847/>

3. Office of the Child Protection Ombudsman (OCPO)

<http://www.protectcoloradochildren.org/info@coloradocpo.org>
720.625.8640

The State of Colorado has a Child Protection Ombudsman to assist in improving the quality of the child protection systematic process. Its mission is to provide a review of information when necessary, improve service delivery of child protection services, strengthen the process through which professionals and community engage within the system, and educate professionals, community partners and citizens on their role in the protection of children.

The OCPO can do the following:

- Facilitate a process of independent, impartial review of family and community concerns
- Request independent, accurate information
- Conduct case reviews to help identify and resolve child protection and overall systemic issues
- Provide recommendations to the State and County child protection departments, as well as to the Colorado Legislature, to improve the child protection system or overall service delivery
- Offer the complainant options for resolving their concerns
- Serve as a resource and systems navigator
- Provide ongoing public education

The OCPO cannot:

- Directly respond to emergencies regarding child safety
- Cannot investigate allegations of child abuse and/or neglect
- Review complaints concerning domestic relations issues (Child and Family Investigator, court rulings, custody orders, etc.)
- Investigate or overturn the acts or decisions of the Court or their staff
- Investigate complaints or concerns regarding the conduct of Judges, Magistrates or attorneys
- Investigate complaints regarding a Guardian ad Litem <http://www.coloradochildrep.org/ocr-cases/additional-case-types/>
- Provide legal advice
- Intervene in any criminal or civil proceeding or any criminal investigation

The Ombudsman's Office is an independent/neutral organization to oversee concerns and complaints related to child protection systems in Colorado. It operates to repair and improve collaborations and serve as a resource to public and private agencies. Concerns and accolades regarding child protection services should be referred to that office.

II. CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE PREVENTION PROGRAMS

Experts recognize that there are SHARED RISK FACTORS with all types of violence, including child sexual abuse. Listed below are programs designed to prevent child sexual abuse, sometimes as a part of programs which implement social-emotional learning, safeguard behavioral health, address antisocial/aggressive behaviors, substance abuse, family conflict, and even poor school/community attachment. Programs containing these elements, especially those which have demonstrated proven outcomes through evidence-based means, may effectively prevent sexual abuse.

Programs reviewed by and listed with national clearinghouses, including the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) National Registry of Evidence-based Programs and Practices (NREPP), the US Department of Justice Office of Juvenile Delinquency and Prevention (OJJDP), the National Institute of Justice Crime Solutions (NIJ/CS), Blueprints for Healthy Youth Development (BHYD), the Promising Practices Network of Programs that Work (PPN), the California Evidence-Based Clearinghouse for Child Welfare (CEBC), and the Center for Disease Control (CDC) have been noted.

- The Colorado School Safety Resource Center (CSSRC) does not endorse any programs and takes no responsibility for any services mentioned below. The CSSRC offers these as information for further investigation by a district and/or school. The list is not exhaustive, and the CSSRC welcomes the addition of programs to this list as they become available, especially if they have evidence of effectiveness and adherence to best practice. Selection of programs should be based on many factors, including capacity to implement services and train deliverers with fidelity to the program model, appropriateness for the population served, and community needs. It is critical to evaluate available school and community resources and motivations.
- Exclusion from a registry, or a lower rating in a research category if a program is included, does not conclusively mean that the program is inferior or will not work for your community. In the selection of a program, the school/district must consider implementation success in like communities, steps to avoid mistaken implementation in consideration of the school population, access to implementation sites in event of questions/concerns, adaptations of the program, staffing requirements (number, qualifications), quality assurance mechanisms (preparation, adherence to model fidelity, assessments), training needs, and costs.

A. Evidence-Based Programs

What makes an effective child sexual abuse prevention/personal safety program? According to studies, the most effective programs:

- Include children as physically active participants⁷
- Combine the techniques of modeling, group discussion, and role-playing/rehearsal⁸
- Engage participants for longer periods of time than less effective programs⁹
- Contain multiple sessions¹⁰
- Incorporate parents/caregivers¹¹

This section lists interventions that have undergone rigorous, independent and peer-reviewed evaluation and have demonstrated proven positive outcomes. They appear in alphabetical order. Please consult each registry for specific definitions of program ratings.

NREPP The National Registry of Evidence-Based Programs and Practices (NREPP), Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) rating system was revised as of 2015. Substance Use, raised additional issues regarding the National Registry of Evidence-Based Programs and Practices. This statement explained some of SAMHSA’s concerns about NREPP designations and the fact that SAMHSA will be taking a new approach to implementation of evidence-based practices (EBPs). The CSSRC will continue to use the previous NREPP designations until new guidelines are released.

- OJJDP Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (US Department of Justice) <http://www.ojjdp.gov/mpg/Program> Programs identified with this listing have been deemed effective by independent research. “Exemplary/Effective” Programs have demonstrated strong evidence that they achieve their desired outcomes when implemented with fidelity. Results have been replicated in at least one independent study. “Promising” Programs have shown some evidence they achieve their desired outcomes. More research is recommended.
- NIJ/CS National Institute of Justice Crime Solutions. <http://www.crimesolutions.gov>. NIJ/CS rates the effectiveness of programs and practices in achieving criminal justice-related outcomes in order to inform practitioners and policy makers. Outcome ratings are identical to OJJDP.
- BHYD Blueprints for Healthy Youth Development <http://www.blueprintsprograms.com/> is hosted by the Center for the Study and Prevention of Violence (CU Boulder). Programs included have been designated as “Model Plus,” “Model,” or “Promising” by a panel of independent experts as having met scientific standards of effectiveness for changing targeted behaviors and developmental outcomes. “Promising” programs are clear about desired outcomes, targeted risks/protective factors and populations, contain trials with valid and reliable findings including one random control trial and two quasi-experimental evaluations, show significant change in intended outcomes with no harmful effects, and are ready to disseminate. “Model” programs meet the above requirements, plus a minimum of two high-quality randomized control trials or one plus a high-quality quasi-experimental evaluation, as well as sustained positive intervention impact for a minimum of 12 months after the end of the intervention. “Model Plus” programs contain the above, plus a high quality study which is completed and funded completely independently from the program developer.
- CEBC California Evidence-Based Clearinghouse for Child Welfare <http://www.cebc4cw.org/> Programs included from the CEBC are rated on a 1 to 5 Scale (1 being well-supported by research evidence, 2-supported, 3-promising, 4-fails to demonstrate effect, and 5-concerning program).
- CDC The Center for Disease Control Injury Center <https://www.cdc.gov/violenceprevention/sexualviolence/prevention.html> conducts systematic reviews using a rigorous evaluation methodology for preventing sexual violence perpetration, and rates programs as effective or promising.
- PPN Promising Practices Network <https://www.rand.org/pubs/tools/TL145.html> in partnership with the RAND Corporation, the Colorado Trust, and the Annie E. Casey Foundation, among others, began in 1997 and concluded in 2014, so new programs will not be reviewed here. The project is archived at this site with compiled research on programs for families and children.
 “Proven” programs are publicly available, and have been studied with adequately-size groups in randomized trials to show a positive impact of statistical significance in at least one outcome area. “Promising” programs are also publicly available and have been studied in randomized trials, but the control group may lack comparability or control, and the proven outcomes have less significant change.

1. ACT (Adults and Children Together) Raising Safe Kids Program: Parenting Skills Training For Safe, Stable, Nurturing Childhood

(202) 336-5817
jsilva@apa.org
www.actraising safekids.org

Listing:	CEBC (Promising), NIJ/CS (Promising), OJJDP (Promising)
Description:	The ACT program, developed by the American Psychological Association Violence Prevention Office, is a well evaluated early prevention intervention focusing on parents and caregivers of young children . The program engages a variety of organizations and agencies and trains professionals (ACT Facilitators) to deliver the program research-based 9-session curriculum to groups of parents and caregivers. The purpose is to teach positive parenting skills and practices that help create safe, healthy, environments that protect children from adverse experiences and their lifelong consequences. The program is listed as effective for parent skills training by the US HHS

Department/Head Start Office in the “Compendium of Parenting Interventions”; listed by World Health Organization as one of only three parenting programs in the “Handbook for Parenting Programmes”; and by the CDC Division of Violence Prevention. ACT is implemented in communities in the US, Puerto Rico and in several countries around the world. The research-based curriculum and materials are culturally oriented. There are training centers in several states in the US and around the world.

Target: Caregivers of children, birth to eight years. It is a universal program helping minority parents, incarcerated parents, abused mothers and any parent who needs help raising safe and healthy children. Materials are translated into Spanish, Japanese, Chinese, Portuguese, Greek, Bosnian and Romanian.

Content: Eight two-hour sessions, hard copies and CD-ROM, Power Point and brochures

Cost: The program kit that professionals receive at the training costs $150; Parent Handbook is $25, and other parenting materials are available free by request.

2. Athlete Safety Matters™/Child Safety Matters®/Teen Safety Matters® by Monique Burr Foundation for Children

904.642.0210

info@mbfpreventioneducation.org

www.mbfpreventioneducation.org/

Listing: CEBC

Description:

- MBF Prevention Education Programs, including MBF Athlete Safety Matters™, MBF Child Safety Matters® and MBF Teen Safety Matters®, are comprehensive, evidence-based/evidence-informed primary prevention education programs. They are available to schools and other organizations, such as child advocacy centers, as well as sports organizations for youth athletes.
- These fun and engaging programs are based on polyvictimization research and teach five universal Safety Rules they can use to help them and their Safe Adults prevent, recognize, and respond appropriately to all types of victimization, including abuse (physical, emotional, sexual, and neglect), bullying, cyberbullying, sexual assault, sexual exploitation/sex trafficking, online/digital abuse and other digital dangers (topics covered are dependent upon grade). They are updated annually to stay current with research and best practices.
- MBF Programs have been provided to over three million students to date and are used throughout the U.S. and internationally.
- The programs were developed with renowned experts, including Dr. David Finkelhor (UNH, Dir. Crimes Against Children Research Center) and are recommended by Erin Merryn of Erin’s Law.
- The programs help schools meet legislative prevention requirements and many education and health-instruction standards.
- The curricula are delivered digitally with reinforcement materials for students, parents, and schools available for purchase or self-print for cost savings.
- Program evaluation research includes: 2015 Florida State University program evaluation; 2016-2018: Randomized control trial led by David Finkelhor, Ph.D., Director, Crimes Against Children Research Center, University of New Hampshire. Results showed positive learning gains and long-term retention. The manuscript has been submitted for publication. Two additional studies will be completed Summer of 2019 (UNH/UF and GSU). Research information is available at: <https://www.mbfpreventioneducation.org/why-use-our-programs/research/>.

Target: MBF Athlete Safety Matters – for youth athletes (from beginner to elite) in multi- grade-level groups (K-2, 3-5, 6-8, and 9-12) – two 35-55-minute lessons per grade- level group annually. MBF Child Safety Matters – for students in grades K-5 – two 35-55 minute lessons per grade level annually. MBF Teen Safety Matters – Middle School – for students in grades 6-8 – two 45-55 minute lessons per grade level annually. MBF Teen Safety Matters – High School – for students in grades 9-12 – two 45-55-minute lessons per grade-level group (9-12) annually. All programs can be presented in 4 shorter lessons.

Content: All MBF Prevention Education Program lessons are provided to youth sequentially in individual classrooms or settings (vs. groups or assemblies) by trained facilitators using turn-key scripts and PowerPoints. The curriculum is available digitally via a password-protected Facilitator Portal. All programs cover the four types of child abuse (physical, emotional, sexual, and neglect), bullying, cyberbullying, and digital dangers. The upper grade levels also include relationship abuse, sexual assault, and sexual exploitation/sex trafficking. Reinforcement materials for students, parents/guardians, and staff/volunteers are an important component of the program and are available to either self-print or may be purchased. Examples include: Parent Opt-Out/Consent, Parent Information and Activity Sheets, student reinforcements and worksheets. Additional reinforcement items (Safety Rules posters and banner) are available for purchase. Facilitators and other adults have access to an online facilitator training, online professional development courses, and other resources. Parents have access to a website and free mobile app with additional information and resources. Scripts are adaptable for special-needs students and all videos are closed-captioned for the hearing-impaired. Parent materials are available in English, Spanish, Portuguese, and Haitian-Creole.

Cost:	All programs are available via three-year digital subscription and include training for multiple facilitators. MBF Athlete Safety Matters - $500 MBF Child Safety Matters - $1000 MBF Teen Safety Matters-Middle School - $500 MBF Teen Safety Matters-High School - $500 Custom quotes are available for larger purchases for use in multiple sites.

Description:	This highly interactive, researched and evaluated program curriculum uses a community of responsibility approach. It teaches bystanders how to safely intervene in instances where an incident may be occurring or where there may be risk. The program is customizable to reflect the locations, colloquialisms and culture of your campus. It is designed to be presented both as a 90-minute program and in a more comprehensive two-session program totaling 4.5 hours.
Target:	High school students, college students, faculty, staff and community members; workplaces
Content:	The curriculum can be purchased and delivered via email to train-the-trainer at your organization, or facilitators can attend regional trainings to learn to implement the curriculum.
Cost:	College: $1,700.00 with license for three years. Each purchase includes five hard copies of a fully developed and easy to use Facilitator's Guide, supporting documents, and electronic copies of the two interactive PowerPoints. Optionally, you may join or host a regional training. This one day train-the-trainer program is for those who want to learn the curriculum in-depth such that they can train future facilitators within their campus community. Cost: $1,700 for curriculum plus a participant fee of $425 per person for the optional training. High School: $900 for large high schools; $500 for small high schools for a license for three years. Training optionally available for $425 per person at our annual High School Institute in August.

6. Enhanced Assess Acknowledge Act (EAAA) Sexual Assault Resistance Education, a.k.a. Flip the Script™ Program

info@sarecentre.org
sarecentre.org

Listing:	BHYD (Promising)
Description:	This sexual assault resistance program is designed to help first-year university women resist acquaintance sexual assault. EAAA is the first and only evidence-based curriculum proven to reduce a woman's personal risk of sexual assault. In a randomized control trial, women who completed the EAAA training were 46% less likely to experience a completed sexual assault and 63% less likely to experience an attempted sexual assault in the year following. Sexual assault, self-efficacy, knowledge, and attitudinal benefits are maintained for at least two years. The program was developed in Canada and has been implemented in several other countries including the U.S. Florida Atlantic University was proud to be the first university in the United States to implement this program. EAAA has been tested with younger girls and a full adaptation is in development.
Target:	17-24 year old college/university women (inclusive of transwomen and all sexual identities)
Content:	The program consists of four 3-hour units that involve information-providing games, mini-lectures, facilitated discussion, and application and practice activities. Participants can attend group sessions for all the units in one weekend (two units each day) or for one unit per week for 4 weeks.
Cost:	$3,500 CDN to attend the train-the-trainer workshop which includes a three-year licensure, in-person and webinar training, the Campus Trainer and facilitator manuals, and all reusable materials needed to deliver the program. Note that Campus Trainers can then train their own facilitators in all aspects of the program delivery except self-defense. Wen-Do Women's Self defense is the EAAA's official collaborator for EAAA Facilitator training. Approved alternative empowerment self-defense instructors can be used outside of Canada. A 2016 estimate of program implementation cost is available at (http://www.blueprintsprograms.com/factsheet/eaaa-enhanced-assess-acknowledge-act-sexual-assault-resistance-education)

7. Families and Schools Together (FAST)

answers@familiesandschools.org
<https://www.familiesandschools.org/>

Listing:	CEBC (Promising), NIJ/CS (Effective), NREPP (Legacy) , OJJDP (Effective with multiple studies)
Description:	The 8-week FAST Program brings multiple families together once a week in dynamic after-school gatherings. In each 2.5-hour session, a trained FAST Team guides families through a scientifically structured agenda of evidence-based activities that enhance parenting skills and reduce family stress while encouraging family bonding. As a result, the family unit of the FAST Child is systematically strengthened with experiences based on family therapy principles that help parents be firmly in charge of and lovingly connected to their children. Each FAST Session includes group activities as well as one-on-one parent-child interaction and parent group time. FAST has one of the highest retention rates among early intervention parenting programs – especially among low-income, stressed and isolated parents: 80% of families who attend one session will successfully complete the entire 8-week program. The program is a multifamily group intervention program designed to build protective factors for children, to empower parents to be the primary prevention agents for their own children, and to build supportive parent-to-parent groups. The overall goal of the FAST program is to intervene early to help at-risk youth succeed in the community, at home, and in school and thus avoid problems such as adolescent delinquency, violence, addiction, and dropping out of school. The FAST program achieves its goals by respecting and supporting parents and by using the existing strengths of families, schools, and communities in creative partnerships.

Target:	Students PreK-5 th grade and their parents. Materials are available in English and Spanish. The program has been implemented in school and community settings
Content:	The FAST team members receive handbooks and training guides
Cost:	Varies, so contact the provider for funding opportunities

8. Fourth R: Skills for Youth Relationships

519-858-5154

thefourthr@uwo.ca

www.youthrelationships.org

Listing:	NIJ/CS (Promising), NREPP (Legacy), CASEL (Complimentary) OJJDP (Model)
Description:	The Fourth R consists of a comprehensive, school-based program designed to include students, teachers, parents and the community, which aims to prevent the following adolescent violence and related risk behaviors: peer and dating violence, substance misuse, and unhealthy sexual behavior. The Fourth R program addresses these adolescent risk behaviors by focusing on relationship goals and challenges that influence their decision-making. Each grade level curriculum includes four units: (1) Personal Safety & Injury Prevention, (2) Substance Use, Addictions & Related Behaviors, (3) Human Development & Sexual Health, and (4) Healthy Eating. Mental health and well-being has been integrated throughout all units. All grade levels include access to the Skills for Effective Relationships video resource. The video clips are age/grade appropriate for students and help youth learn and practice healthy relationship skills such as assertive communication and conflict resolution skills. Through its universal approach, rather than solely targeting youth who show problems, the program builds resiliency in the entire population.
Target:	Middle and high school health classrooms, high school English classrooms. Available in English and Spanish, public and Catholic school versions
Content:	The curriculum binders and video resources provide teacher-friendly lesson plans, including bystander training, group learning instruction, role plays for skill practice and innovative teaching methods with a variety of activities to differentiate instruction, assessment and evaluation.
Cost:	$150 per grade for curriculum

9. Green Dot

info@livethegreendot.com

<http://livethegreendot.com/>

Listing:	CDC (Promising), NIJ/CS (Promising) OJJDP
Description:	Green Dot is a bystander-based prevention program designed to increase positive bystander behavior, change social norms, and reduce sexual and other forms of interpersonal violence perpetration and victimization. Green Dot was designed for college populations but has been adapted for high school, community, and military populations. A study found that Green Dot was associated with reductions in unwanted sexual victimization and sexual harassment, stalking, and dating violence victimization and perpetration on a college campus implementing the program compared to two comparison campuses without the intervention.
Target:	High school and college students, communities, military populations
Content:	The program consists of a 5-hour training in bystander behavior for peer opinion leaders and campus/school-wide “persuasive speeches” to educate and engage the population.
Cost:	Varies depending on campus size and need.

Description:	Positive Action is a Pre-K-12 social-emotional learning (SEL) program that addresses the whole child—physical, intellectual, social and emotional domains—producing improved academic scores, emotional regulation and behavior, including reductions in bullying, violence, substance use and sexual risk behaviors. The program's universal philosophy: you feel good about yourself when you do positive actions and there is a positive way to do everything, which is depicted by the Thoughts-

Actions-Feelings about Self Circle. It is taught across six unit concepts in 15-20-minute lessons which integrate pro-social curriculum for 15 minutes two to four times per week. It also has components for climate development, counseling, conflict resolution, bullying prevention, drug education, and family and community engagement. The curriculum then moves into teaching positive actions (skills/healthy practices) for physical, intellectual, social, and emotional areas. In addition to a reduction in sexual risk behaviors and violent behaviors, students report an increase in emotional regulation and academic performance. It is aligned with Common Core and State standards as well as SEL standards/competencies.

Target:	Differentiated by grade level for students PreK-12, Spanish option available for K-4 and 7-8.
Content:	Posters, games, music, puppets, and manipulatives, plays, radio scripts, stories, journaling
Cost:	Delivery of training differs depending on whether face-to-face, on site ($5,000 per day including travel expenses) or online ($300 per hour). Grade level instructor's kits run $400-550 each.

14. RealConsent

info@behavioralsciencetech.com

<https://www.ibridgenetwork.org/#!/profiles/4005658529748/innovations/399/>

Listing:	CDC (Effective)
Description:	RealConsent is an online training program for sexual assault prevention. The program's framework is based on social cognitive theory, social norms theory and the bystander decision model. The program was rigorously tested with a randomized controlled trial and is listed on the CDC's website. The six modules communicate key themes using a high degree of interactivity and engagement. Definitions, scenarios, survivor stories portrayed by actors, expert testimony, advice from peers, and interactive quizzes and games are utilized throughout. There are also scenarios that ask the student to decide whether informed consent is possible, after providing guidelines for what constitutes consent. A serial drama (titled "Crew") provides educational entertainment and highlights a group of male friends that model both positive and negative outcomes for key behaviors and instruct on relevant topics including: knowledge of informed consent, communication skills regarding sex, the role of alcohol and male socialization in sexual violence, empathy for rape victims, and bystander education
Target:	College-age men
Content:	Six thirty-minute modules
Cost:	This program is still in its beta testing phase and will be available soon. Use the contact information for more information or to be included in beta testing.

19. Shifting Boundaries: Lessons on Relationships for Students in Middle School

Bruce Taylor, PhD

NORC at the University of Chicago

taylor-bruce@norc.org 301.634.9512

http://www.preventconnect.org/2013/05/shifting_boundaries/

Listing: CDC (Effective), NIJ/CS (Promising), OJJDP (Promising)

Description: Shifting Boundaries is a multi-level primary prevention program for middle school students that addresses sexual harassment and teen dating violence (TDV) as precursors or risk factors for TDV. It is unique in that it embraces a whole-school approach by using four school-wide interventions as well as classroom lessons. The classroom curriculum is comprised of four to seven lessons. It addresses boundary-setting, measuring personal space, avoidance of inappropriate behaviors including sexual harassment, appropriate response, consequences, and mapping safe and unsafe spaces at school. The four school-wide interventions include using temporary school-based restraining orders called “respecting boundaries agreements”; mapping safe and unsafe areas of the school; the adjustment of school security and supervisory personnel based on the location of the “hotspots”; raising awareness among school faculty around the “hotspots”; and the use of posters to increase awareness and encourage reporting of incidents to school officials.

Target: Differentiated lessons for 6th, 7th and 8th grade students, as well as school-wide interventions

Content: Curriculum guides outline role-play and bystander intervention activities, suggestions for self-reflection, and instruction on corrective action.

Listing: BHYD (Promising), CEBC (Promising research evidence for parent training, supported by research evidence for prevention), NIJ/CS (Effective), NREPP (Legacy), (OJJDP (Effective), PPN (Promising)

Description:	The Triple P – Positive Parenting Program® is a parenting and family support system designed to prevent – as well as treat – behavioral and emotional problems in children and teenagers. It aims to prevent problems in the family, school and community before they arise and to create family environments that encourage children to realize their potential. Triple P draws on social learning, cognitive behavioral and developmental theory as well as research into risk factors associated with the development of social and behavioral problems in children. It aims to equip parents with the skills and confidence they need to be self-sufficient and to be able to manage family issues without ongoing support. Parents learn age-appropriate skills and methods on healthy boundaries, active skills training, discipline techniques, child and adolescent development, communication, and child safety. Provides a tiered five-level system of treatment. It is a proven system with a suite of programs adaptable to community needs. It is delivered in a range of ways including one-to-one, small groups, large groups, or online. Reductions in child abuse are measurable (between 16-22% fewer hospitalizations, out of home placements and confirmed cases). Note that Triple P should not be construed as a child sexual abuse prevention program per se , but rather as a program that teaches general parenting skills.
Target:	Parents and caregivers of children 0-16 years of age.
Content:	Triple P programs are classified through a five-level system that addresses service intensity (i.e. the amount of support parents may need) and how parents prefer to access this support (e.g. one-to-one, groups, online). The programs can be implemented individually or a population or targeted approach can be built from combining programs based on community needs and initiative goals.
Cost:	Varies by program

B. “Best Practice” Programs

The following programs have undergone internal evaluations or studies but are not listed by one of the national evidence-based/evidence-informed registries above. These programs contain specific objectives of current “best practice” research.¹² Scientific research reveals that the elements of best practice may include whether the program:

- Is grounded in theoretical framework
- Contains multiple lessons with specific content over a period of years with multiple reviews with homework
- Has appropriate training for instructors
- Encourages community involvement
- Addresses polyvictimization
- Helps children identify safe adults
- Helps adults build confidence in building safety
- Addresses children with special needs
- Contains an Internet safety component
- Contains a body safety component
- Can be tailored to community needs
- Multidisciplinary (meets the core educational needs in environment)
- Teaches children that sexual abuse is not their fault
- Addresses grooming behaviors
- Is interactive
- Addresses proper disclosure

No program MUST include all of these features to be effective, as programs are targeted for different audiences. “Best practice” differs for programs targeted for children, parents, communities, and professionals, so the selection process must consider the purpose for each intervention in determining whether it follows best practices and fits the community needs. It is important to remember that many prevention programs have no evidence proving their effectiveness, and many are implemented without fidelity to models or quality control. Such programs can waste resources, or more importantly, cause actual harm. Some of the programs below are undergoing current review, which can be a prolonged and expensive process. This manual will be updated as that research becomes available. The programs are listed alphabetically.

1. The Blue Bench (Formerly RAAP)

Counties Served: Denver Metro

Description: The Blue Bench offers a number of scientifically-supported prevention programs and education workshops which are aligned with Colorado’s Comprehensive Health Standards for grades 6-12:

- Keeping Kids Safe (for elementary students’ parents, teachers, and other adults serving children and adolescents) is a two-hour workshop designed to empower participants with knowledge and strategies to proactively take steps to keep youth safe, have developmentally-appropriate discussions with youth about sexual violence, recognize red flags, and intervene when concerned about a child.
- Let’s Talk About it: Sexual Assault Prevention for Youth is designed for middle school students and delivered in a flexible five-hour format focusing on healthy relationships, boundaries, gender roles, consent, dynamics of sexual harassment and violence, and skill-building to become an active bystander.

¹² National Center for Missing and Exploited Children’s Guide for Choosing a Community-Based Safety Program (1999); Prevent Child Abuse America’s State and Federal Legislative Efforts to Prevent Child Sexual Abuse: A Status Report (2015); Center for Disease Control’s Sexual Violence: Prevention Strategies (2015), among other various studies.

- Bringing in the Bystander® is an evidence-based program developed by the University of New Hampshire (see p.10). The Blue Bench has adapted it for high school students, where it is deliverable in a flexible format, from 90 minutes to multiple sessions adding up to 5 hours total. It is designed to increase high school students' knowledge about the dynamics of sexual violence, empathy for survivors, and skills to engage in safe bystander intervention.
- Knowledge is Power is a one to two-hour community workshop designed to educate participants about dynamics of sexual assault. Participants will gain knowledge in order to challenge common misconceptions and support survivors.
- Safety and Empowerment Skills are three to six-hour classes for individuals who are age 13+ years old and female-identified, trans-identified, gender non-conforming, non-binary and gender expansive. Participants learn verbal assertiveness skills and physical techniques designed to be effective against a perpetrator regardless of the perpetrator's size and strength.

Description: Think First & Stay Safe™ and Teen Lures TV Newscast™ are comprehensive primary prevention training and curricula. Both curricula are differentiated™ by grade level and taught sequentially. Both are standards and research-based turnkey school resources. They meet state and national mandates for bullying/harassment and sexual violence prevention education. Think First and Stay Safe™ has been scientifically evaluated multiple times using federal standards and is consistently proven to be effective in increasing student knowledge and skills; multi-year evaluations of Teen Lures TV Newscast document program efficacy. Both curricula are approved by the State Departments of Education in Colorado and nearly a dozen other states, with more pending. Aligns with the Colorado Department of Education's Comprehensive Health Standards, grade specific. Approved by erinslaw.org and National Educators to Stop Trafficking (NEST). 2019-2020 Edition.

For information on studies to measure program efficacy, see:

https://childluresprevention.com/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/Hollys-House_Pre-Post-Data-Summary-TFSS-2019.pdf.

- a. Think First & Stay Safe™ Adult Training and Youth Curriculum teaches youngsters developmentally-appropriate lessons about healthy relationships and pro-social behaviors. All PreK-6 students learn to set, respect and assertively defend personal/digital boundaries of self and others. Interactive classroom lessons promote each child's right to body ownership and safety. Students learn that bullying/cyberbullying, harassment, physical and sexual abuse are against the law. Students identify trusted adults and learn that all secrets can be told. Proven prevention strategies help lower risk of child sexual abuse, bullying, harassment, child luring and Internet/electronic crimes. Scripted lessons are designed to be taught in as few as 5-15 minutes each. For Grades PreK-2, there are seven short lessons to be taught. In addition to a Quick Review of previous years' concepts, Grade 3 has five lessons, Grade 4 has six lessons, Grade 5 has five lessons and Grade 6 has five lessons.
- b. Teen Lures TV Newscast curriculum for Grades 7-8 and 9-12 consists of (10) Student News Anchor Scripts, with corresponding Video Newsclips, and Teacher-facilitated Class Discussions and activities. Each student-led Newscast teaches media literacy while simultaneously allowing teens to peer teach about healthy relationships, consent and personal safety. Behavioral goals are to open student/adult dialogues, change cultural norms and reduce harassment, dating violence, sexual assault, bullying/cyberbullying, sexting, identity theft, online luring, suicide and human trafficking. Students perform the 5-min Newscasts (2 student anchors per Newscast), as an introduction to each Class Discussion. (10 Newscasts/Class Discussions for Grades 7-8/ 9-12)

8. Intervene

<https://health.cornell.edu/initiatives/campaigns-materials/intervene-bystander-campaign>

Description:	The Skorton Center for Health Initiatives at Cornell Health, in collaboration with the Cornell Interactive Theater Ensemble, has developed a bystander intervention video and workshop called Intervene © 2016. Intervene is both a video and a workshop: <ul style="list-style-type: none">● Video: The online 20-minute video Intervene includes brief filmed scenarios demonstrating ways in which student bystanders can successfully intervene in problematic situations. Seven different situations are addressed, including sexual assault, sexual harassment, intimate partner violence (emotional abuse), hazing, alcohol emergency, emotional distress, and bias.● Workshop: An in-person 60-minute workshop provides an opportunity for students to view the video with others and engage in a facilitated conversation to reflect upon the attitudes and behaviors that influence the process of intervening as an individual or with assistance. Participants also discuss additional related scenarios not included in the film. The Center conducted a randomized controlled trial evaluating the effectiveness of the video. After four weeks, students who watched the stand-alone video reported a higher likelihood to intervene for most situations compared to a control group who did not view the video. The workshop was effective at increasing students' likelihood to intervene for most situations as measured in the four-week follow-up survey.
Target:	Undergraduate, graduate, and professional college students. Secondary audiences include university staff, faculty, parents, alumni, and other academic institutions.
Content:	Video, program overview pdf, and Facilitator Discussion Guide PowerPoint
Cost:	Free. Cornell would appreciate your participation in evaluation of the program.

National Dating Violence Hotline 866.331.9474 or text “loveis” to 22522 loveisrespect.org
National Domestic Violence Hotline 800.799.7233 thehotline.org

Description:	myPlan is a tool that survivors of intimate partner violence can use to help them make decisions about safety. Accessible through a discreet and confidential smartphone app (or web-based tool), myPlan is not meant as a replacement for the expertise of advocates and providers—it is designed to encourage the majority of survivors who may never seek services to reach out for help. Designed through a series of multi-year research studies conducted by Johns Hopkins University School of Nursing, myPlan is the first interactive safety decision aid. The tool is accessible via a mobile app and website, and designed to assist intimate partner violence (IPV) survivors in identifying and navigating their own safe path forward. Decision aids in health care settings have been shown to be effective in assisting patients to make difficult decisions about treatment options. By providing information and helping to clarify personal values, decision aids can assist someone to weigh risks and benefits to make informed decisions that impact their safety. Tested in two longitudinal randomized controlled trials with over 1000 survivors, friends, and advocates across the country who have reported reduction in decisional conflict, using more safety behaviors, and being more likely to safely end a dangerous relationship.

<http://www.nyspcc.org/our-work/safe-touches-personal-safety-training-children/>

Description:	Safe Touches is a comprehensive child sexual abuse prevention program designed for children K through 3 rd grade. Trained facilitators help kids learn and practice key safety concepts using puppets to talk about sensitive safety concepts. After the workshop, the children are given an age-appropriate activity book on body safety to complete at home with their caregivers. Key safety concepts include private body parts, safe and not safe touches (and that they happen to both boys and girls and may be made by people we know or don’t know), how to report not safe touches, that abuse is never the child’s fault, and that children should tell until they are believed. The Safe Touches curriculum was developed by The New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children (NYSPCC), a nonprofit organization dedicated to improving the lives of maltreated and at-risk children through research, education, advocacy, and direct services. In 2012, with support from the National Institute of Health (NIH), The NYSPCC conducted a full scale research study to assess program efficacy among second and third graders. The study found significant increases in knowledge of workshop-related concepts.
Target:	Students K-3 (Safe Touches). The NYSPCC also provides Child Sexual Abuse Prevention Education (not Safe Touches) for students in grades 4 through 12, as well as for parents/ caregivers, and teachers and other staff members. The Curriculum is currently only available in English.
Content:	Safe Touches includes a workshop and homework activities with caregivers. Age appropriate adaptations are made for students in grades 4-5, 6-8, and 9-12 in the Child Sexual Abuse Prevention Education programs.
Cost:	Varies depending on scope and location of implementation. To maintain fidelity to the evidence-informed Safe Touches model, the program requires facilitator training, including travel expenses. This program has not been implemented in Colorado. Please contact the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children to learn more.

SaferSmarterSchools.org Professional development

<https://safersmarterfamilies.org/> For families—free extension activities and prevention information

Description:	These school-based curricula are designed for PreK through grade 12 and include adaptations for special education. Professional development for educators is also available. Studies funded by the developer, conducted independently, have indicated significant increase in body safety knowledge after completion of the program. The spiral curriculum builds with the development of the child, and contains elements that address body-safety, bullying, empowerment, and Internet safety. With age -appropriate considerations, the programs address safe/unsafe situations, the grooming process, and balances of power in relationships. Each grade contains five to eight 30 minute lessons that can be incorporated into reading, health, or social science lessons. Safer, Smarter Kids teaches students how to identify safe and unsafe situations and individuals, and how to seek help if they feel unsafe or uncomfortable. At the core of this program, students are taught how to use their voice and get help, and that it’s ALWAYS ok to tell.

	Safer, Smarter Teens empowers middle and high school students to tap into their personal power and become advocates for change in their communities, while learning how to use their voices to better protect themselves and others.
Target:	Families, students PreK-12, students with disabilities. Available in Spanish and Creole. Professional development module available for teachers, principals and guidance counselors.
Content:	Teacher’s Guides, Parent Letters, video lessons, visual aids, in-class activities, optional homework activities, posters, stickers, activities, bookmarks and online tools for parents and educators; aligned to education standards; free grade-level training videos for educators
Cost:	About $300 per grade--varies depending on services and add-ons purchased.

Description:	SAVA provides confidential support to victims of sexual assault through crisis intervention, advocacy, and counseling. SAVA also provides prevention programs through community outreach and education. These curricula are designed for ages 8 through 18. Each prevention program utilizes the STOP Sexual Violence strategies outlined by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to address sexual violence prevention in school communities. SuperWorld combines lessons on self-esteem, stereotypes, boundaries, consent, and healthy exercise and diet with training for a 5K (3.1 miles) race. SuperWorld encourages positive emotional, social, mental, and physical development while training for a common goal. It is delivered in two weekly one-hour sessions for eight weeks, and is targeted to youth ages 8 to 12. Speak Up! is targeted to youth ages 12-14. It focuses on positive identity development and explores topics related to the root causes of violence and skills to develop healthy relationships and intervene in situations that are unsafe. One hour sessions each week for a semester or school year incorporate discussions, art projects, writing activities, movie clips and experiential games to address a myriad of topics including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identity – who we are and who we want to be • Gender Stereotypes – portrayals of masculinity and femininity in the media • Self-Esteem – cultivating healthy body image and sense of self • Feelings & Communication – identifying, recognizing, and expressing emotions • Preventing Gender Violence – defining sexual harassment and sexual assault • Healthy Relationships – setting boundaries and advocating for ourselves • Our Futures – setting goals for the future and supporting ourselves and our friends Sexual Assault Resource Team (SART) Peers is a 90 minute presentation for middle and high-school aged youth (12-18). (A train-the-trainer model is available.) SART Peers aims to reduce the incidence of sexual violence among today’s youth through peer education and community support. High school students identified as leaders within their schools are trained to facilitate presentations addressing sexual harassment and sexual assault through developmentally appropriate discussions and activities. Students receiving the presentation develop skills to challenge root causes of gender violence, promote bystander intervention, and to access resources to support themselves or a friend.
Target:	Students aged 8 through 18
Content:	Differentiated--see above.
Cost:	No cost for Larimer and Weld County students. Please contact to discuss cost outside that geographic region.

24. SungateKids SafeKids (SK²)

Erin Katz, J.D., Director, Prevention Programming

303.368.1065

erin.katz@sungatekids.org

<https://www.sungatekids.org/programs-services-for-child-abuse-victims/sungatekids-safekids/>.

Counties Served: Douglas, Jefferson, Arapahoe, Elbert, and Lincoln Counties, and the greater Denver Metro area via SungateKids Child Advocacy Center. Please contact SungateKids to inquire about availability in your district.

Description: SungateKids SafeKids (SK²) is a multi-faceted, interactive child abuse prevention program developed by SungateKids, a nationally recognized and accredited child advocacy center serving the greater Denver metro area. SK² is aligned with the Colorado Department of Education's Comprehensive Health and Physical Education Academic Standards for 3rd, 4th and 5th grades. The program is too new to have undergone rigorous independent study, but is modeled on the evidence-based Kids on the Block Program, which has been utilized nationally to improve social behaviors relative to children with disabilities and social concerns. SK² has anecdotally resulted in positive outcomes. Delivered in a 45-minute puppet program, each puppet represents one of three children who have had various experiences with child abuse. The content empowers children with body safety education, awareness of predatory behavior, and self-confidence. There is opportunity for response after the segment, and educators are trained to provide support and continue the discussion in the classroom intermittently following the presentation. Parents are engaged in the process. SungateKids also offers separate prevention education programming for parents of preschool-aged children focused on helping parents begin a conversation about child abuse safety with young children.

Target: Students grades 3-5, parents, and teachers

Content: Interactive puppet show, discussion and debrief, materials for follow-up

Cost: Free

III. PROGRAMS TO PREVENT HUMAN TRAFFICKING

The U.S. Department of Education has developed a guide to help school officials understand how human trafficking impacts schools, recognize the indicators of possible child trafficking, and develop policies, protocols, and partnerships to address and prevent the exploitation of children. That guide is available at <https://safesupportivelearning.ed.gov/human-trafficking-americas-schools>. A simple fact sheet for schools can be downloaded here:

<http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/oese/oshs/tipfactsheet91913.pdf>.

As a part of its Blue Campaign[®] to end human trafficking (see Campaigns in section VIII below), the Department of Homeland Security prepared this pamphlet of facts and resources for educators:

<https://www.dhs.gov/sites/default/files/publications/bc-inf-ed101-ht-101-for-school-administrators-staff.pdf>.

The National Center for Homeless Education (U.S.D.E.) contains assistance for how schools should respond to instances of trafficking at <http://center.serve.org/nche/downloads/briefs/trafficking.pdf>. Homeless youth are at especially high risk.

The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children also offers resources at <http://www.missingkids.com/theissues/cse/cstt>

Within the State, the Colorado Human Trafficking Council was created within the Department of Public Safety to build a coalition of community-based and statewide anti-trafficking efforts. Their work is outlined here:

<https://sites.google.com/a/state.co.us/cdps-prod/home/human-trafficking-council>. Further information regarding the Council is found on p. 39 of this guide. Additionally, the following prevention programs are designed to prevent human trafficking and exploitation.

<http://www.fightingexploitation.org/prevention-education-and-solutions>
MLMCinfo@jri.org

Description:	Preventing Sexual Exploitation Among Adolescent Girls: The My Life My Choice Curriculum is a survivor informed, gender specific, ten session prevention curriculum. This curriculum is currently in the final stages of evaluation for evidence-based status by the National Institute of Justice. The My Life My Choice Prevention Curriculum seeks to empower youth to protect themselves from the commercial sex trade. The curriculum works to change girls' attitudes and perceptions of the commercial sex industry, increase knowledge, as well as build self-esteem and personal empowerment. The curriculum provides an in-depth look at participants' vulnerabilities and helps girls shift behaviors if they are already on the path towards exploitation. While the curriculum can be used as primary prevention, it was designed for secondary and tertiary levels of prevention in order to reach the most vulnerable girls - those who are disproportionately at risk for victimization and youth who are involved with the child welfare system. Additionally, as part of the larger prevention solution, My Life My Choice provides a suite of advanced training opportunities ranging from facilitating the prevention curriculum to residential leadership and clinical training

Target: The curriculum is gender specific - for girls only - who are between the ages of 12 and 18. The group is beneficial for all adolescent girls but especially impactful to girls who are at disproportionately high risk to be victims of commercial sexual exploitation (for example, girls who have a history of childhood sexual abuse or girls who are involved in the child welfare system), as well as girls who have been victims of exploitation

Content: The curriculum is 10 sessions long and each session is written to be 75 minutes. The curriculum recognizes different learning styles and therefore includes a variety of activities including: icebreakers, discussions, role plays, hands-on activities, as well as more introspective opportunities including journaling. Sessions address issues including: myths and facts about commercial sexual exploitation, how to identify a pimp, recruitment tactics, substance abuse, self-esteem, sexual health, healthy relationships, and local and national resources to support youth at risk of exploitation.

Cost: In order to receive the curriculum, you must be trained by a Licensed My Life My Choice Trainer. As part of the training you will receive a copy of the curriculum as well as a membership to the My Life My Choice Online Community, a web-based platform for providers using the curriculum across the country. Each agency should send two facilitators to the training (as the model requires that all groups are co-facilitated by Certified Facilitators). The cost of the two-day training is approximately $700. There is an application process to attend the training. Please contact My Life My Choice for more information.

5. Not a #Number (Love 146)

info@love146.org

<https://love146.org/notanumber/>

Description: Not a Number is an interactive, five-module prevention curriculum designed to teach youth how to protect themselves from human trafficking and exploitation through information, critical thinking, and skill development. It uses a holistic approach focusing on respect, empathy, individual strengths, and the relationship between personal and societal pressures that create or increase vulnerabilities. The content includes information and skill building activities on how to understand and prevent various forms of human trafficking and exploitation, personal vulnerability and the effects of traumatic events, healthy and unhealthy relationships, online safety, safety planning, and identification of healthy support systems and resources.

Target: Youth ages 12-18 in schools, child welfare and juvenile justice agencies, residential facilities, and other community settings.

Content: The curriculum uses scenarios, videos, spoken word, discussion, and handouts for individual and small group work. Resources for professionals working with youth and caregivers are included and can be downloaded from the website.

Cost: A three-day Facilitator Certification Training is required for all professionals who would like to implement the program in their settings. Please contact Love146 at notanumber@love146.org for more details

Description:	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● Love Notes 3.0: Unplanned pregnancy, single parenting, and troubled relationships are a serious threat to the well-being and futures of many young adults, as well as to their children. Love Notes 3.0 was created for this vulnerable, high-risk audience. In 13 lessons, participants discover, often for the first time, how to make wise choices about partners, sex, relationships, pregnancy, and more. Rather than focusing on what to avoid, Love Notes builds assets and appeals to aspirations. It offers young people new conceptual frameworks to help them make informed decisions instead of sliding into unplanned choices that can derail their lives.

- Mind Matters: People who have experienced trauma and toxic stress often have difficulty regulating their emotional responses when facing challenges in school, life, and relationships. As participants learn the skills and strategies in Mind Matters, they can begin to say, “I am not a victim of what happened to me.” Mind Matters’ 12 one-hour lessons teach students ages 12 and up to respond to negative experiences with innovative methods based on current research and neuroscience. These skills give individuals a way to take charge of their emotions and improve their states of mind. Students learn to address their physical, relational, and mental health needs.
- Relationship Smarts PLUS 4.0: Relationship Smarts PLUS 4.0 is designed to help teens learn, in 12 ready to teach lessons, how to make wise choices about relationships, dating, partners, sex, and more. New content keeps this curriculum current by covering timely topics such as consent, sexting, and assault. The program uses popular media and lively activities to engage both males and females in learning. An updated workbook helps teens apply curriculum concepts to their own lives. Parent-Teen activities for each lesson stimulate conversations and connections with trusted adults.

Target:	Love Notes: Ages 15-24 Mind Matters: Ages 12 and up Relationship Smarts: Ages 12-16
Content:	Love Notes: Knowing yourself; forming and maintaining healthy relationships; frameworks for assessing relationships; recognizing unhealthy relationships and responding to dangerous ones; effective communication and conflict management skills; intimacy, sexual values, pacing relationships, consent, and sex; planning for sexual choices; unplanned pregnancy and relationship turbulence; how the order of school, employment, commitment, and babies impacts your future; bonus lesson on technology and social media Mind Matters: Self-Soothing and Regulating Emotions: Cultivate a mindfulness practice; Managing Stress Effectively: Learn to deal with intrusive thoughts; Developing Empathy: Improve interpersonal communications; Creating a Code of Honor: Develop a life of intention; Building and Using a Support System: Learn how to ask for help Relationship Smarts: Self-awareness; healthy relationships; problems, warnings, and dangerous relationships; communication and conflict; intimacy and sexual decisions; updates to the Success Sequence; social media

7. Working to Institutionalize Sexuality Education (WISE)

A Program of Trailhead Institute

Adrienne Wall, Program Manager
720.836.1191
www.trailhead.institute

1385 S. Colorado Blvd. Suite A622, Denver, CO 80222

Mission:	Trailhead Institute is a coalition for public health innovation. Youth sexual health is just one component of its work. Trailhead's goal is to become a trusted, centralized, multi-sector resource for youth sexual health, education and resources across Colorado as a way to connect initiatives, dismantle silos, and build seamless synergy across health topics.
Description:	The Working to Institutionalize Sex Ed (WISE) Initiative is a national model and is Trailhead Institute's youth sexual health cornerstone program that works to ensure that quality sexual health education is a component of ongoing school curriculum. The primary goal of the WISE initiative is to advance school-based sexual health education programs by supporting targeted implementation efforts, increasing student access to quality education, and expanding the field's body of knowledge related to best practices for institutionalizing sex education. Please contact Trailhead to learn more about bringing WISE to your school or district.

c. The Colorado Statewide Child Abuse Hotline

Borrowed from <http://co4kids.org/tools-and-education/toolkit/co4kids-what-happens-after-you-call>

About the Colorado Child Abuse and Neglect Hotline System:

The Colorado Child Abuse and Neglect Hotline, 1-844-CO-4-Kids or 1-844-264-5437 became operational on Jan. 1, 2015. The hotline is designed to provide one easy-to-remember toll-free phone number for individuals to use statewide to report suspected child abuse and neglect. It serves as a direct, immediate and efficient route to the counties which are responsible for accepting and responding to child abuse and neglect inquiries and reports. All hotline calls will be routed to the county where the child resides.

The system enables the Colorado Department of Human Services to capture critical information that it has not previously been able to track on a statewide basis, such as number of calls, duration, speed of answer and wait time on the line, call transfers, and abandonment rate. This data is critical to ensuring that calls across the state are handled quickly and appropriately.

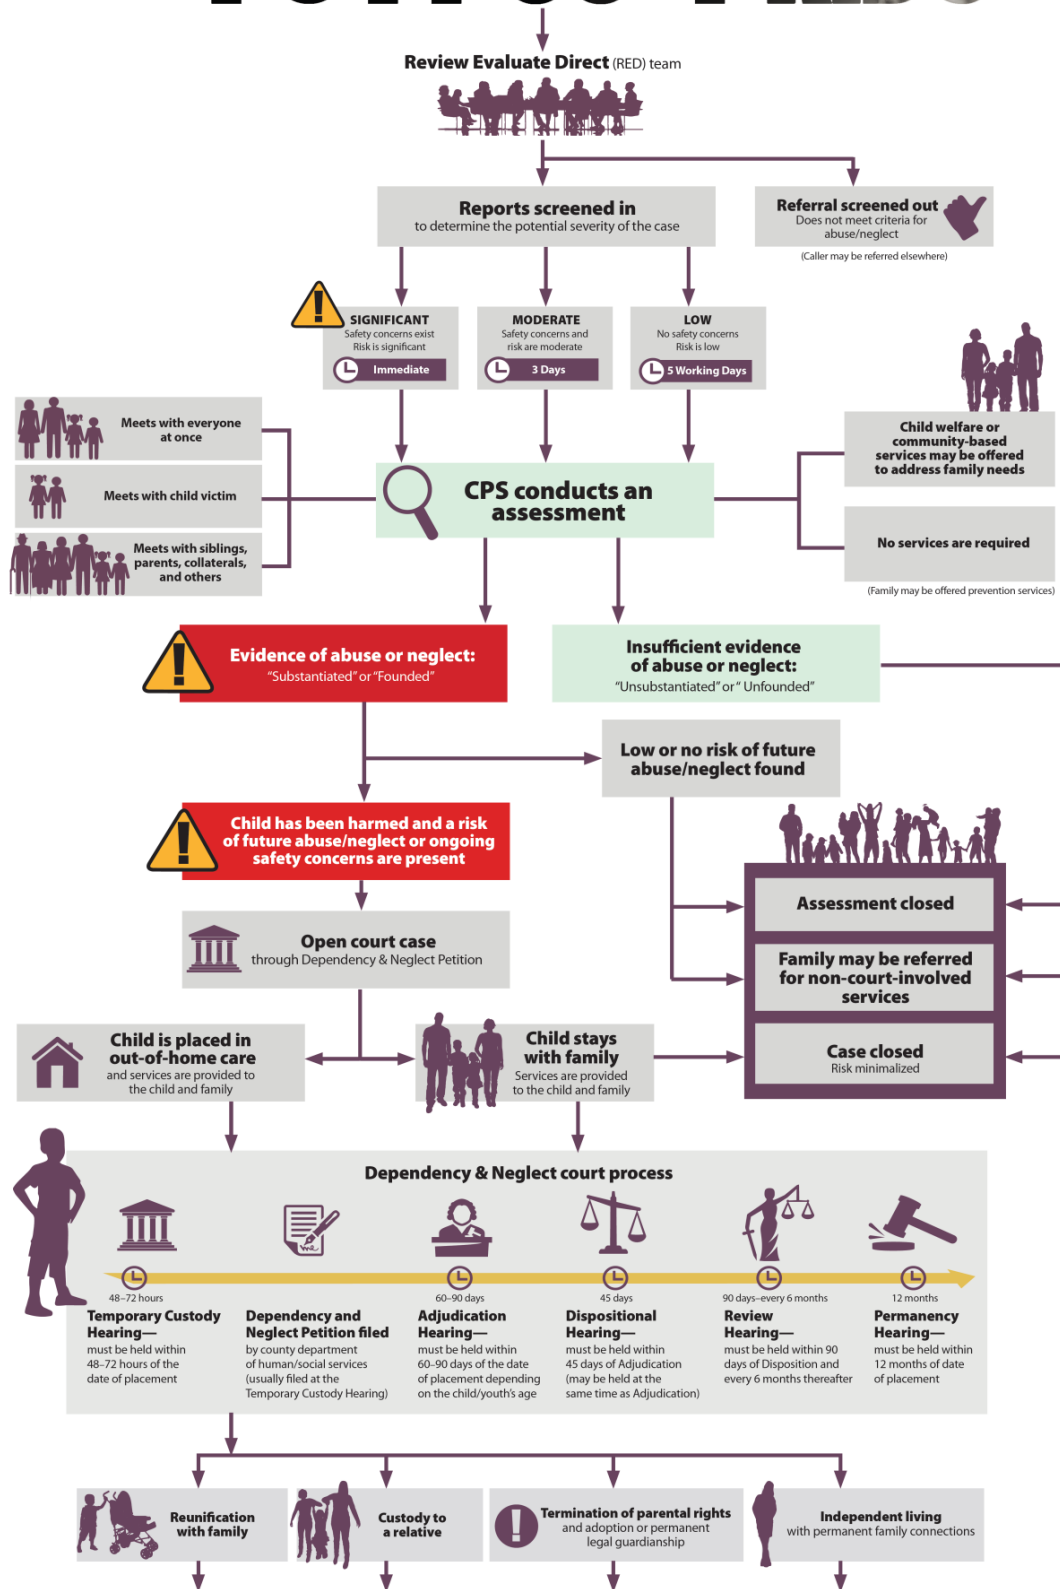

Counties will maintain their current practices of receiving reports of abuse and neglect, but to ensure proper routing, each county must have a dedicated line for child abuse and neglect reporting. Calls made directly to a county's dedicated line will also be routed through the hotline system for data collection purposes. This process is automated and seamless and does not require putting a caller on hold or cause any delay in answering calls.

How the Hotline System Works

- The main purpose of the hotline is to quickly route callers to the appropriate county. Callers will be asked to speak the name of the county where the child resides and then will be connected to that county.
- Callers who are not sure of the county, speak a language other than English or Spanish, or are deaf or hard of hearing will be directed to a Hotline County Connection Center representative who will assist them in identifying the appropriate county.
- The Hotline County Connection Center is located in Prowers County and will be staffed 24/7, 365 days/year by trained call-takers, certified annually through the Colorado Child Welfare Training System.
- All callers will speak with a call-taker who is trained and certified to use a screening guide designed to drive a structured process for interviewing callers who are reporting concerns of child abuse and neglect.

IX. CAMPAIGNS

a. Blue Campaign

The Blue Campaign is the unified voice for the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's (DHS) efforts to combat human trafficking. Working in collaboration with law enforcement, government, non-governmental and private organizations, the Blue Campaign strives to protect the basic right of freedom and to bring those who exploit human lives to justice. <https://www.dhs.gov/blue-campaign/about-blue-campaign>

b. Blue Ribbon Project

Established in 1983 by a Virginia grandmother who lost her grandson to child abuse, the blue ribbon was used to bring attention to the tragedy of child abuse. Near that time, President Ronald Reagan established April as National Child Abuse Prevention Month, and the blue ribbon gained ground as a symbol in the effort to end abuse. <http://blueribbonproject.org/?gclid=CNDP0NDSh80CFQUMaQodwpUOzQ>

c. CO-4-KIDS

CO 4 KIDS is the public awareness campaign of the Office of Children, Youth and Families within the Colorado Department of Human Services. The campaign exists to generate awareness of the services provided by the division, to help mandated reporters understand their obligations and how to meet them, and to create interest for the Colorado children in need of stable foster and adoptive homes. The 2019 campaign theme is "We all play a role in strengthening families." The statewide hotline for reporting child abuse is 844-CO-4-KIDS. co4kids.org

d. Enough Abuse Campaign

The Enough Abuse Campaign is predicated on the belief that communities can prevent individuals from sexually abusing children in the first place and that communities can prevent children from developing sexually abusive behaviors in the future. Based on this belief, the Campaign implemented a plan of action. Through a comprehensive approach that focuses on individuals, relationships, communities, and the larger society and culture, the Enough Abuse Campaign has established authentic community collaborations engaged in ongoing planning, implementation and evaluation of a range of child sexual abuse prevention strategies.

<http://www.enoughabuse.org/the-campaign.html>

e. Pinwheels for Prevention

In 2008, Prevent Child Abuse America introduced the pinwheel as the national symbol for child abuse prevention through Pinwheels for Prevention®. By its nature, the pinwheel connotes whimsy and childlike notions. In essence, it has come to serve as the physical embodiment, or reminder, of the great childhoods we want for all children. Prevent Child Abuse Colorado (represented under the umbrella of strategic partners that comprise Illuminate Colorado, pp. 41-42 above) is the local chapter that organizes the abuse prevention campaign for child-serving agencies throughout Colorado during Child Abuse Prevention Month each April.

<http://preventchildabuse.org/resource/pinwheels-for-prevention/>

f. Stop Abuse Campaign

The Stop Abuse Campaign prevents Adverse Childhood Experiences through public policy and public education. The campaign seeks to educate adults and protect children, hold offenders responsible, prevent domestic violence, and empower families. <http://stopabusecampaign.com/>
