This facility has no holding cells.
This facility has no locking interview rooms or waiting rooms.
The interview rooms and/or offices are lockable but they cannot be locked (for example, the keys are missing), or the interview rooms and offices have locks on the doors but the doors can only be locked from inside the room.
There are no cuffing rings, cuffing benches or other stationary objects that officers could use to cuff juveniles to prevent them from leaving the building.
This facility contains no physical or environmental features or structures that could detain or confine a juvenile or prohibit them from leaving the facility, including a perimeter fence.
This facility is a staff-secure facility where the physical restriction of movement or activity is provided solely through facility staff. These facilities are considered to be non-secure. Status offenders being held by law enforcement for the sole purpose of returning him to his parents or guardians, or pending a transfer to the custody of a child welfare or social service agency are exempt from JJDPA Core Requirements under the definition of Detained and Confined and are therefore NOT considered to be securely held. Pending transfers to court or secure juvenile detention centers are NOT included in the Detained and Confined exception. These juveniles should not be held in a secure room or cell, but they can be supervised by a staff authority in a non-secure area to ensure their presence.
