

H.B. 2013-1236: Bond Reform Impact Analysis

Background

The Colorado Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice made recommendations for modifications to the bond statutes, and these recommendations became House Bill 2013-1236. The bill, signed by the governor in May 2013, encouraged the use of actuarial risk assessment in the bail release decision process, discouraged the use of financial bonds, and imposed a presumption of release under least-restrictive conditions, among other things. The Commission's Pretrial Release Task Force, seated in the summer of 2017, is studying the extent to which the 2013 reforms were implemented. To assist with this investigation, the Division of Criminal Justice's Office of Research and Statistics undertook the following analyses focused on the use of financial bonds compared to the use of personal recognizance (PR) bonds over the course of a six year period, from 2011 to 2016. Data from the first three years reflects bond setting practices prior to the passage of H.B.13-1236, and this information may be compared with bond setting practices in the three years following enactment.

This document presents information from three analyses of interest to the Pretrial Release Task Force. To understand the impact of H.B.13-1236 specifically on the use of personal recognizance (PR) bonds, the first analysis compares the use of cash/surety/property bonds with PR bonds over a six year period, from 2011 to 2016. In addition, because questions have been raised about the value of financial bonds to minimize courtroom FTAs (failures to appear), a second analysis shows the FTA rates across the six years for both financial bonds and PR bonds. Finally, in an effort to better understand the role that drug-related problems may play in FTA rates, a third analysis compares the FTA rate for felony cases that included a drug offense charge compared to those without a drug charge.

Because each judicial district and county court operate with varying policies and practices, the analyses are summarized graphically by judicial district and by county.

H.B. 2013-1236: Bond Reform Impact Analysis

Summary of Findings

- Overall the use of PR bonds increased somewhat (Table 1):
  - For misdemeanor/traffic cases, PR bonds increased from 16% to 27% in the three year period prior to H.B.13-1236 and the three year period post H.B.13-1236.
    - There is considerable variation across courts in the use of PR bonds.
  - For felony cases, PR bonds increased from 12% to 21% over the six year period.
    - There is considerable variation across courts in the use of PR bonds.
  - The use of PR bonds for Blacks more than doubled from the pre-period to the post-period but remained lower than other race/ethnicity groups (Table 2).<sup>1</sup>
- Regarding the value of financial bonds to decrease FTAs, there is no indication that this consistently occurs (see graphs below). Complicating the interpretation, however, is that those on financial bond, compared to those released on their personal recognizance, may be higher risk cases so the groups of individuals are likely to be different (and not comparable) in very important ways.
- The comparison of cases with and without drug charges in felony cases shows that cases with drug offense charges are more likely to FTA, and the proportion of cases with drug charges increased over the six year study period.

Method

Felony and misdemeanor/traffic cases with pre-disposition<sup>2</sup> bond records covering a three-year period pre- and post- H.B.13-1236 (1/1/2011 to 12/31/2013 and 1/1/2014 to 12/31/2016) were extracted from Judicial Branch's ICON system. Denver misdemeanor/traffic cases were not available.

Cases may contain many bond records, due to bond reduction/increase events, or new arrests. The following rules were used to analyze a single bond record per case:

- The first posted bond record was selected. If bond was not posted, the first bond record was selected (excluding "No Bond" records).
- Bond records contain a "set type" and a "post type". If the bond set type was blank but the post type was available, the post type was used for bond set type.

<sup>1</sup> The differential treatment of minorities is a concern to the Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice, and efforts to analyze study findings by race/ethnicity is ongoing.

Overall Findings

Tables 1 and 2 show the first bond event, selected using the rules stated above, by bond set type, regardless of whether the bond was posted or not. Table 1 shows that personal recognizance bonds increased from 16% to 27% for misdemeanor/traffic cases, and from 12% to 21% for felony cases. However, the significant variation across jurisdictions, in both misdemeanor/traffic cases and felony cases, becomes apparent in the graphic depictions that follow the tables.

Findings: Bond Posted by Judicial District and County

Understanding these figures

The following graphics show cases<sup>3</sup> in which bond was posted, by the posted type, for felony (pages 6-38) and misdemeanor/traffic cases (pages 39-102). The orange portion of the columns represents financial bonds (cash/surety/property) and the green portion reflects PR bonds, and each column represents calendar years, from 2011 through 2016. The number of cases is illustrated on the left axes of the graphs.

Using the 1st Judicial District as an example (page 5), the first graph shows the PR rate for felony cases in 2011 was 20% compared to 25% in 2016. For misdemeanor/traffic cases in the 1st Judicial District (below the first graph), the PR rate in 2011 was 19% and increased to 32% in 2016.

In addition, for each posted type (financial and PR), and for each crime category (felony and misdemeanor/traffic), the FTA rate is shown. For felony cases in the 1st Judicial District, for example, the FTA rate for financial bonds increased from 16% to 20% between 2011 and 2016. For PR bonds, the FTA rate increased from 11% to 18%, however, the PR bonds represent many fewer cases compared to the financial bond cases. Also, these figures show that the FTA rate for PR bonds in 2016 was 18% compared to 20% for financial bonds in the 1st Judicial District. However, as mentioned above, individuals on a PR bond compared to those on a financial bonds may be very different in terms of FTA risk, so caution must be used in the interpretation of this information.

For misdemeanor/traffic cases in the 1st Judicial District, the PR rate increased from 19% in 2011 to 32% in 2016. The FTA rate for financial bonds went from 16% to 19% over the six years, and for PR bonds the FTA rate was 10% in 2011 and 11% in 2016. These graphs also allow comparing—with caution, as mentioned previously—the FTA rate in 2016 for misdemeanor/traffic cases for those with PR bonds (11%) and those with financial bonds (19%).

Finally, the proportion of felony cases released on bond that had a drug charge (note that cases may contain multiple charges) is presented over the six year study period. For the 1st Judicial District, the proportion of cases posting bond that had a drug charge increased from 28% in 2011 to 37% in 2016.

The corresponding graphs reflect the FTA rate is for felony cases that have drug charges compared to cases without drug charges. In the 1st Judicial District, felony cases that posted bond in 2016 WITHOUT a drug charge had an FTA rate of 15%. This compares to an FTA rate of 26% for cases WITH a drug charge. This pattern is generally consistent across judicial districts.
