

Positive School Climate: Parent Information Night

What does it mean to have a positive school climate?

What does the legislation and research say about it?

How can parents help create a positive climate in schools?

Why should school culture matter to parents?

What does a positive school culture look like?

You are invited to a presentation answering these questions and more. Join us for a Parent Information Night hosted by the Colorado School Safety Resource Center.

When: Monday, September 15, 2014, from 6:30pm to 7:30pm

Where: Basil T Knight Center (behind B&H Sports)

596 North Westgate Drive

Grand Junction, CO 81505

The Colorado School Safety Resource Center is hosting a Positive School Climate: Bullying Prevention Institute for school staff on September 16, 2014. This parent night is an opportunity for parents to hear more about what school staff are discussing and how parents can be partners in the efforts to make their child's school experience as positive as possible.
